Robert Albus, Panelist at 1st Annual Northeast Sustainable Communities Workshop

Robert Albus, President and CEO of Goodrich Capital, was selected to be a panelist at the first annual Northeast Sustainable Communities Workshop on June 18th, 2009 at the New Jersey Institute of Technology. This workshop was attended by more than 240 members from regulatory agencies, the financial community and municipal authorities. The session Robert was a part of focused on public and private partnerships looking to fund projects specifically involving brownfield redevelopment.

The primary focus of this workshop was to discuss different options for funding from the private sector as well as identifying the various grants and funding resources provided by the government for projects centered on the remediation and reintegration of brownfield properties.

Bob confirmed the availability of capital currently available within the private sector for brownfields remediation projects. Furthermore, he outlined the appropriate criteria investors would be looking for to sponsor an investment. There was an agreement among the panelists that there are opportunities for funding through the private as well as public sectors even in the trying economic times we are facing.

About the 1st Annual Northeast Sustainable Communities Workshop

It is intended that this workshop will not simply add 'sustainability' to the list of issues related to Brownfields but will look deeply at the interconnections and confluences that make for creating sustainable communities through Brownfields redevelopment. Brownfields are uniquely suited to be a place for sustainable redevelopment to grow. The program for this workshop is intended to be one day of intensive, high energy exchanges between stakeholders sharing varied perspectives on the issues surrounding Brownfields and sustainability.
